

Redistributive Preferences in Comparative Perspective
TS Eliot Theatre, Merton College
15-16 April 2011

Schedule:

Friday 15 April

- 10:55-11:00 Welcome and introduction, David Rueda (Oxford University).
- 11:00-12:00 David Rueda (Oxford University), "Explaining the Political Consequences of Inequality: Relative Income Effects, Altruism, and Group Heterogeneity in Western Europe."
- 12:00-13:00 Pablo Beramendi (Oxford University) and Philipp Rehm (Ohio State University), "Redistribution and Preference Formation."
- 13:00-14:00 Lunch. Merton Hall.
- 14:00-15:00 Thad Dunning (Yale University), "Do Quotas Promote Ethnic Solidarity? Field and Natural Experimental Evidence from India."
- 15:00-16:00 Brian Burgoon (University of Amsterdam), "Immigration, Integration and Support for Redistribution in Europe."
- 16:00-16:15 Coffee break.
- 16:15-17:15 Daniel Stegmueller (University of Mannheim), "Voting against Redistribution: The Role of Religion, Preferences, and Party Policies."
- 17:15-18:15 Yotam Margalit (Columbia University), "Ideology All the Way Down? The Impact of the Great Recession on Partisans' Welfare Policy Preferences."
- 19:00: Dinner. Merton SCR.

Saturday 16 April

- 9:00-10:00 Raymond Duch (Oxford University) and Philipp Rehm (Ohio State University), "Vicious Circles: Why Inequality Persists."
- 10:00-11:00 Noam Lupu (Princeton University) and Jonas Pontusson (University of Geneva), "The Structure of Inequality and Preferences for Redistribution."
- 10:30-11:00 Coffee break.
- 11:00-12:00 Timo Idema (Oxford University), "Voter Conversion and Mobilisation in Multi-party Democracies."
- 12:15-13:15: Lunch. Merton Hall.