

Taking Fiscal Policy Seriously

Nuffield Foundation, 28 Bedford Square, London, WC1B 3JS
November 9, 2017

- 9.30-10.00 Registration
- 10.00-10.45 Opening address by Roberto Perotti (Università Bocconi)
- 10.45-11.45 Managing the UK National Debt 1694-2017
Martin Ellison (University of Oxford)
Andrew Scott (London Business School)
Commentary by Michael Lamla (University of Essex)
- 11.45-12.15 Coffee
- 12.15-1.15 Government Debt Management – the Long AND the Short of it
Elisa Faraglia (University of Cambridge)
Commentary by Ricardo Reis (London School of Economics)
- 1.15-2.00 Lunch
- 2.00-2.45 Keynote address by Rupert Harrison (BlackRock, ex Chief of Staff of George Osborne)
- 2.45-3.45 Government Debt Management – what we know and what we need to know
Dimitri Vayanos (London Business School)
Commentary by James Knight (UK Debt Management Office)
- 3.45-4.15 Coffee
- 4.15-5.45 Fiscal Councils – why do we need them?
Panel discussion featuring Roel Beetsma (University of Amsterdam and European Fiscal Board), Robert Chote (Office for Budget Responsibility) and Laura van Geest (Netherlands Bureau for Economic Policy Analysis), moderated by Michal Horvath (University of York)
- 5.45 Close

The workshop is supported by the Money, Macro and Finance Research Group, Nuffield College Centre for Applied Macro Policy (NuCamp), Centre for Applied Macro-Finance at the University of York (CAMF), the Nuffield Foundation and the Centre for Macroeconomics (CFM). The organisers are Andrew Scott (London Business School), Martin Ellison (University of Oxford) and Michal Horvath (University of York).